

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Will Be Celebrated Next Tuesday Evening By The Gold Mine Department Store.

RECEPTION IN THE EVENING

Growth of The Store.—Its History. Prosperity Has Been Deserved. —Fair Dealing.

The Gold Mine Department Store will celebrate their twenty-fifth anniversary with a public reception at the store from 7 to 10 next Tuesday evening, November 29.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the event and besides the display of the big fall and winter stock, the store will be beautifully decorated. There will be a musical program and business will be suspended for the evening.

The management extends a cordial invitation to friends and patrons to attend.

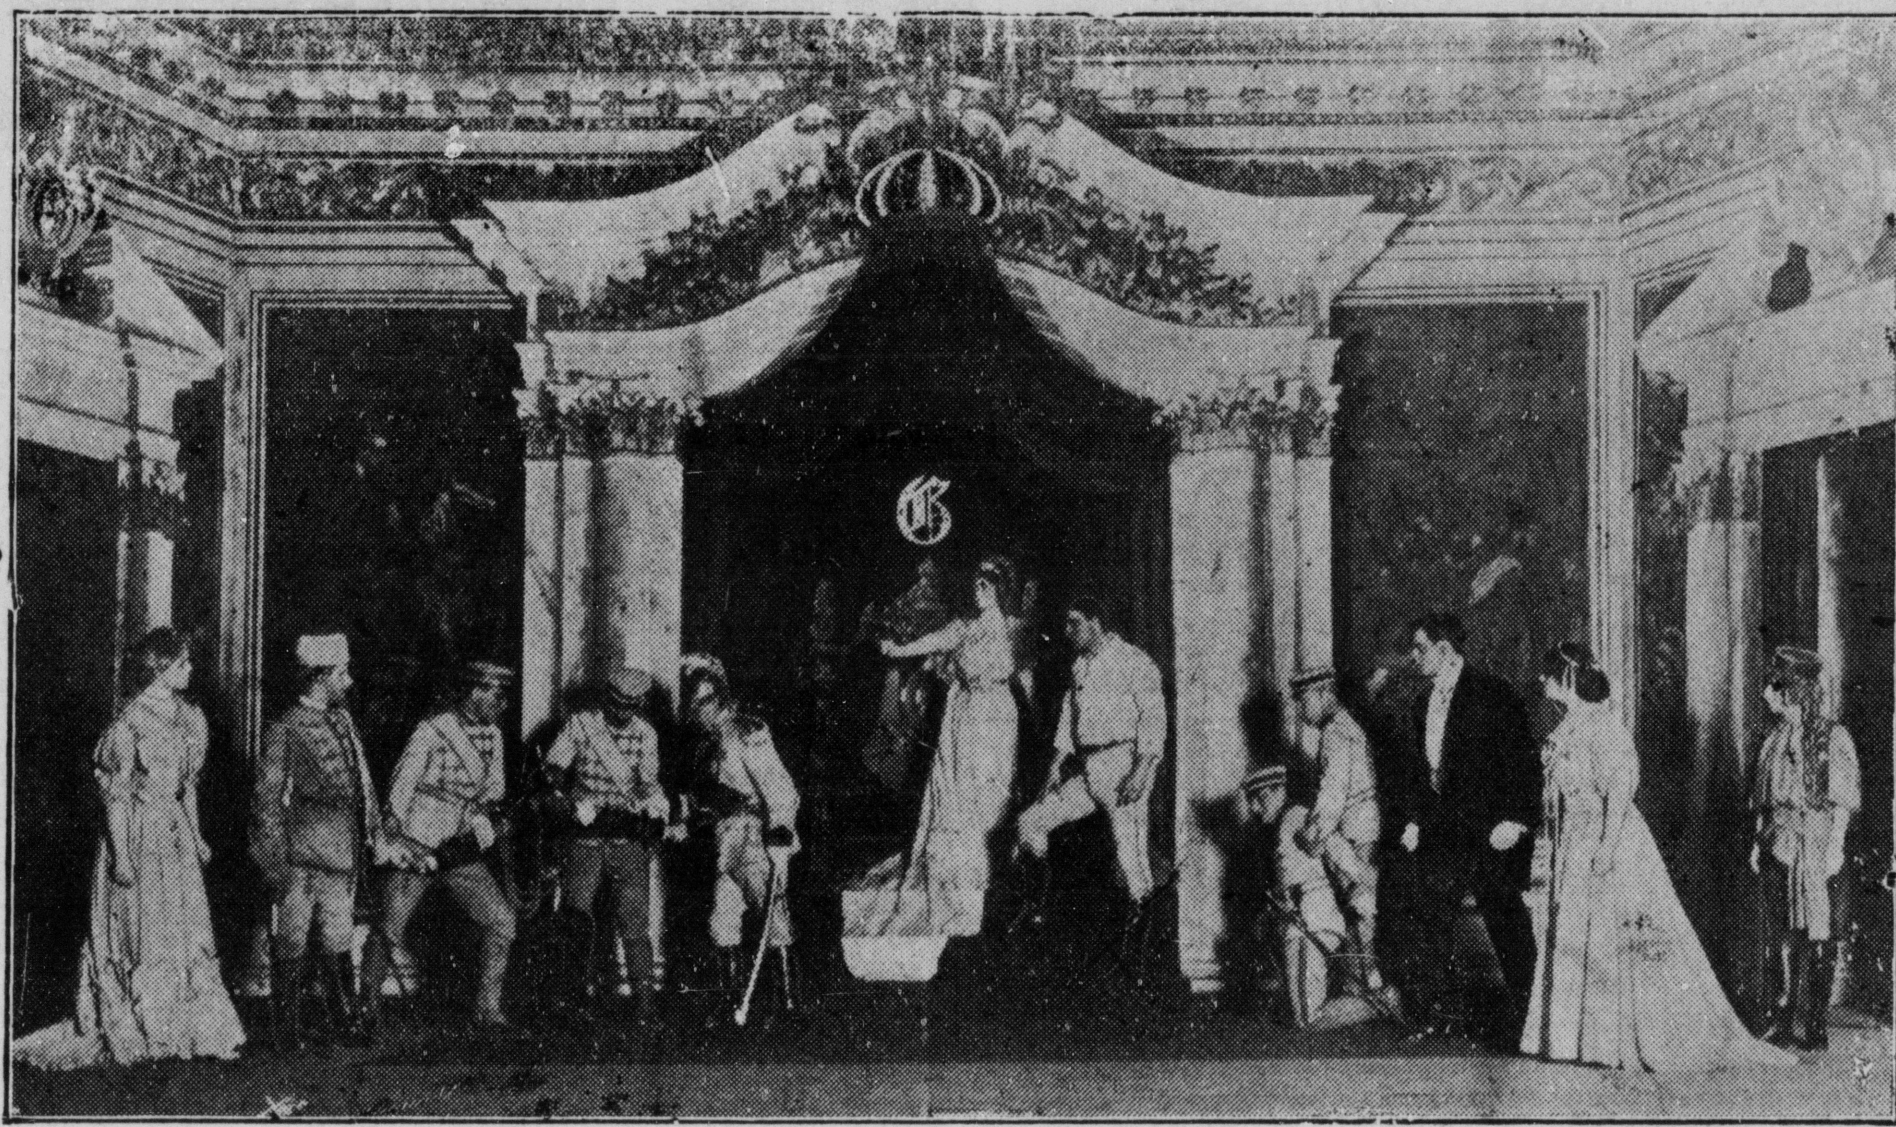

The proprietors are justified in the pride they feel in their splendid establishment and the anniversary is especially worthy of celebration when the growth and development of the store during the twenty-five years of its existence is considered.

The Gold Mine started as a branch store of the Cahn & Strauss Dry Goods Store of Columbus Nov. 4, 1885 in the building now occupied by the Mayes grocery and known as the old Rosenberg stand. It started under the management of Simon Strauss and Henry Aufderheide. The business was successful from the start and in a few years the quarters became too small and a move was necessary. Opportunity being presented the Jones & Isaacs Dry Goods Store in the Groub building was purchased and the business was continued there under the name of A. Strauss & Co. A few years later they were operating there a whole sale and retail business under the management of S. Strauss and N. Kaufman.

In 1895 the Growdy lots on Chestnut street were bought and the firm broke ground for their own building. A modern three story structure with basement was erected. In connection with the dry good store they operated the Seymour Pants Factory, employing about 125 people.

In a few years they incorporated under the name of The Gold Mine Dry Goods Company with A. Strauss president, N. Kaufman, vice president and general manager and N. Speiers secretary and treasurer. In addition to this store the firm now has several other stores. They are operating under the names of the Strauss-Lederer Company at Terre Haute; The Strauss Co. at Alpena, Michigan; The A. Strauss Dry Goods Company at Bedford; The Gold Mine Branch Store at Brownstown.

The Gold Mine is one of the largest and most up-to-date stores in southern Indiana. The management has worked tirelessly to keep their establishment abreast the times and to give good values, have been fair and honorable in all their dealings with their patrons and have as a consequence won the confidence and good will of the people. #### WILL PRACTICE IN COLUMBUS

Judge Marshall Hacker and Frank S. Jones Form Partnership.

Frank S. Jones, who has been practicing law in this city for several years, has formed a partnership with Judge Marshall Hacker, of Columbus, for the practice of law in Columbus. The firm, which will be known as Hacker and Jones, will open offices within a short time.

Mr. Jones has enjoyed a large clientele in this county, and by his honesty and fair dealing, has acquired many friends here. He is recognized as one of the most able lawyers in the county and has won nearly all of the cases which he has tried in the Jackson circuit court. He is a careful student of the law and has the ability to present his arguments before a judge or jury in a direct and forceful manner. Besides being an attorney of a high reputation, he is an excellent citizen, a public spirited man and takes a deep interest in public affairs.

Judge Hacker recently retired from the bench of the judicial circuit comprised of Bartholomew and Decatur counties, and is regarded as one of the successful attorneys in Columbus. His record upon the bench was highly commendable and he will doubtless command a good clientele when he returns to the active practice.

Mr. Jones will spend most of his time in Columbus as soon as the firm's office is opened, and his family will move to that place later in the winter.

Mrs. Thornton Dodds has been called to Clearspring by the serious illness of her mother.

The condition of Mrs. J. H. Davis, of North Ewing street, who is in the hospital at Columbus, remains about the same.

The condition of Miss Elsie Cordes who is very critically ill at her home on North Chestnut street, remains about the same.

Edward White, present deputy attorney general, will be retained by Thomas Homan until after the legislative session, at least.

The residence of George Holtz near Spraytown, was burned Saturday. Only a few of the household goods were saved. The house was insured.

Tuesday evening a Dixie Flyer struck a heavy delivery wagon at Henryville. The wagon was demolished and two horses killed, but the driver, Thomas Beckett, escaped uninjured.

Elder Harley Jackson will go to Columbus Friday and make arrangements for the last auction sale for the winter, which the Central Christian church of that city has been conducting.

Postoffice Notice.

Tomorrow, Thanksgiving day, the Seymour Postoffice will close at 10 a. m. and remain closed until 6 p. m. when the general delivery window and the carriers' window will be open one hour. Office will close for the day at 7 p. m. The city carriers will make the usual morning delivery and evening collection. Rural carriers will not go out on their routes tomorrow.

A. J. VORNHOLT MEETS WITH CORN SHREDDER ACCIDENT

Ear of Corn Hit His Elbow and Knocked His Right Hand Between the Revolving Knives.

While feeding the machine near his home Tuesday afternoon, A. J. Vornholt, who resides four miles north of Cortland, met with the first corn shredder accident which has occurred in this vicinity this season. He has had much experience with the machine, having operated the shredder for nine years, and was regarded as a careful operator.

While it is not known definitely what caused the accident, it is thought that an ear of corn hit his right elbow and knocked his hand between the revolving knives. His hand and fingers were broken and badly lacerated and it was found necessary to amputate his hand just above the wrist. Drs. J. M. Jenkins, of Cortland, and W. F. Gerrish, of this city performed the operation. The unfortunate man is resting as well as could be expected, although his injury is very painful.

Mentalo.

A large number witnessed the mystifying acts of Mentalo at Dreamland Tuesday evening. Her wonderful performances were watched with much interest, and many will return this evening to see her repeat the acts.

At the Majestic.

Thelma Azora, who is presenting the thrilling act at the Majestic with the wild African lion, pleased a good crowd last night. The act will be repeated this evening and will be seen by a good crowd.

Star Bread Notice.

We want everybody to eat Star bread for Thanksgiving dinner.

LOST TWO FINGERS.

Edward Sasse, of Jonesville, Has Accident With Corn Shredder.

Edward Sasse, of near Jonesville, lost two fingers on his right hand late Tuesday evening, while feeding a corn shredder which he was operating on the farm of Finley Wright several miles west of Jonesville. The cogs and knives of the machine lacerated the two middle fingers of his hand so badly that it was necessary to amputate them. His hand was also badly bruised but it is not thought that he will suffer any further trouble from the accident.

RAID IN NEW YORK OF INTEREST HERE

Operations of Continental Wireless Company Checked By Post Office Inspectors.

DEMONSTRATION IN SEYMOUR

Made My Representatives of Subsidiary Company.—Local Men Declined to Invest.

A raid made this week in New York by postal authorities on the offices of the Continental Wireless Telegraph and Telephone Company recalls to Seymour people an opportunity they had not long ago to invest in wireless.

About the first of September representatives of the Collins Wireless Telephone Company spent several days in Seymour. They installed instruments in the city building and gave demonstrations of the work of the wireless telephone. Many witnessed the demonstrations and were much interested but it is not recorded that the interest taken resulted in the purchase of any of the stock offered in the $5,000,000 company with which the Collins had been merged and which was the Continental.

The agents stated that it was the intention to build a line across the continent with one high power station at Louisville. From there connections with Indianapolis were to be made and eventually it was the intention to establish stations in Seymour and other smaller cities as encouragement was received in the way of subscriptions for stock. This stock was offered at ground floor prices and it was figured out that the purchasers would receive big returns in the future.

One of the agents retired from his job shortly after the visit to Seymour and has since been in Seymour several times as the representative of an insurance company.

Postoffice officials say the Continental has sold $1,000,000 worth of stock which has brought in no returns. Inspector Keene, giving the history of the Continental Wireless, said: "The company was organized in Arizona on October 1, 1909, with a capital of $5,000,000 but did not begin operations on a large scale until May of this year. It obtained control of the Collins Wireless Telephone Company, the Pacific Wireless Telegraph Company, the Clark Wireless Telegraph-Telephone Company and the Massie Wireless Telegraph Company. The Columbia Finance Company was organized to market the stock and an ambitious selling campaign was carried on all over the country.

The complaint filed with the court charges that "the literature of the Continental Wireless Company represented to investors that all its subsidiaries were companies in good standing; that the Collins Wireless had established a large business on the Pacific coast and that the Continental Wireless Telephone and Telegraph Company stands without a parallel," whereas in fact, "all these representations were false and made only to defraud investors."

THANKSGIVING

THE EARTH IS FULL OF HIS PRAISE.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Again the earth in stately course has turned
Her face unto the vital sun above,
While ever unto him her soul has yearned
To speak, through leaf and flower and fruit, her love.

And now her crowning season comes once more
When he repays her love with golden store.

And she is lavish in her thankfulness
And opulent in praise. So filled is she
With gratitude she would all creatures bless.
How much more thankful, therefore, should we be

To him who has o'er sun and earth command
And holds them "in the hollow of his hand!"

If earth inanimate can show her love
And praise, how much more should we,
who feel,

Pour forth our gratitude to One above,
That He to us His love should thus reveal.
In all this heaped bounty and this good
That flows from His full heart of fatherhood.

And how much in this truly favored land
Have we for deep thanksgiving! In all time

Have never poured from out God's opulent hand
Such blessings as have filled our own dear clime.

Peace, progress, length of days and liberty,
Our father, these and more we owe to Thee.

Thine was the hand that guided Washington
And led us out of darkness into light.
It was Thy love in Lincoln's soul that won Mankind to mercy; it was by Thy might
That in achievements this our age has shown

Such strides as earth before had never known.

It was by Thee that we were moved to give
The boon of freedom unto alien isles.
In Thy today how good it is to live!

Thy future seems all golden afterwhiles.
How hast Thou blest our land, Lord, in its youth!

Oh, keep it ever loyal to Thy truth!

NAVAL ACADEMY HAS SENSATION

Half the Middies Sickened By Mysterious Drug.

NEGRO COOKS ARE SUSPENDED

Strong Circumstantial Evidence Disclosed by the Authorities That Two Assistant Cooks Sought to Injure the White Cook by Putting Poisonous Drugs in the Food Served at the Mess Table.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 23.—That the negro employees of the midshipmen's mess who desired to injure the white cook, introduced drugs in the articles of food used by midshipmen, causing the severe stomach trouble which began about ten days ago and which affected over half of the men, is the firm belief of authorities of the academy. Acting on facts which have been brought out by the investigation of Commander Coontz, commandant of midshipmen, and a number of naval medical officers, an order has been issued suspending C. J. Ridgely and William Harris, steward and assistant cook respectively, and further action will be taken if facts are found which warrant it.

It is admitted that there is no direct proof against the two, but it is said that there is strong circumstantial evidence.

The theory of the authorities is that Harris desired the place of chief cook and that in this he was abetted by Ridgely. The place is filled by William Weaver, a white man. It is thought that the drug was placed in sugar, from which it is hardly distinguishable without careful examination, and in that way reached the coffee and tea, and the desserts partaken of by the midshipmen.

DR. CRIPPEN HANGED

American Dentist Pays Penalty For Wife Murder.

London, Nov. 23.—Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen was hanged at 9:02 o'clock this morning. The American dentist thus paid the penalty for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen.

The execution took place with only a few of the necessary British officials, in addition to the hangman, present. The doomed man had no words for any surrounding the scaffold.

When the black cap was adjusted Crippen was calm and so swung to his death. Life was soon extinct.

Ethel Clare Leneve, the stenographer, because of infatuation for whom Crippen put his wife out of the way, has booked passage on the steamship Majestic, which sails from Southampton for New York tomorrow.

Alleged Confession a Fake.

London, Nov. 23.—The alleged confession of Dr. Crippen is declared to be a fake. Inquiries made at the home office and at Scotland Yard elicited the information that at neither place had anything been heard of a confession.

WOMEN THROW STONES

After Failing in Attack on Asquith, They Smash Windows.

London, Nov. 23.—Premier Asquith was assaulted by suffragettes in the precincts of the house of commons and was saved from rough handling only by the prompt arrival of a strong body of police. After the mob of women were dispersed, parties of suffragettes visited the private residences of the ministers on a window-smashing expedition. Eight windows in the house of Foreign Secretary Grey, three in the residence of Winston Churchill, president of the board of trade, and several in the house of Commissioner of Works Harcourt, were broken. Altogether about 180 of the disturbers were arrested.

A FASHION CHAT ON FASHIONABLE WAIST DESIGNS

Furnished by Pictorial Review

222 West 39th Street, New York City

The correct waist for the tailored suit has come to be as important as the suit itself. A clever woman can make a smart up-to-date coat suit answer for two if she wisely plans and provides her waists to wear it. For instance, a blue suit, whether of broadcloth, serge or rough effect, will be extra smart if she has a tailored waist the same color; the waist may be of messaline, taffeta, moire or mohair, either of solid color or with a hair line stripe or dot. It can be worn with a stylish jabot and collar or stock and the outfit is just the thing for morning shopping or general street wear. She will also have a dressy waist to wear with the same suit; it also matches in color, mainly, but may have considerable contrast introduced in the way of lace yoke, collar and undersleeves, embroidery in another color or when the Persian effects are used the ground of the silk should match the suit, and bands of solid color relieve the mass of color. Again the figured silk may be entirely covered with blue chiffon, marquisette or voile nion. Such a waist is worth many times its cost when visiting or when the wearer meets her friends for matinee or afternoon tea. A bit of colored embroidery on the wash shirt waist is very fashionable, and so are the frills and jabots with colored scallops and edges.

The tailored silk waist has a front or side closing this season more frequently than has been the case for some time, but the back closing is still preferred by many. It is usually becoming to the figure and allows any style or kind of elaboration for the front.

Satin striped marquisette is excellent for a dressy waist and is especially effective when it is printed in the Persian figures as illustrated in PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3644. As the marquisette is rich in figure and color effects it is worn over a white net guimpe which has a princess lace collar and undersleeves. The guimpe is not included in the pattern but the overblouse may be tacked in place over it after they are made. The body and sleeves are in one without a seam on the shoulder. This design is also adaptable to silk and cotton, Japanese and India print squares, fancy or plain silks, and all the veiling materials may be used over Paisley or Persian silks or the latter may be used alone. The blouse is also very effective in all-over Irish lace or made of wide cluny insertion put together. Pattern sizes are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure and size 36 requires 3/4 yards of 40-inch material.

The price of this pattern including cutting and construction guides is 10c.

PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3647 is a charming model for a silk waist. Its style is excellent and it has a decidedly sporty appearance. Its sizes are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure and a medium size requires 3/4 yards of 27-inch material. Pattern, 15c.

The handsome blouse pictured in PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3640 shows a smart manipulation of the Persian silk material. The material is trimming in itself and the dainty frill at the neck adds to its beauty. Its sizes are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure and the price of pattern is 15c.

Poultry Terms.

A cockerel is a male bird less than a year old. A cock is a male bird over a year old. A pullet is a female bird less than a year. A hen is a female bird over a year old. A yearling is generally one counted as having laid twelve months. A sitting of eggs is thirteen, although many poultrymen have increased it to fifteen. A broiler is a bird weighing two pounds or less and from six to twelve weeks old. A spring chicken is a young bird weighing over two pounds. A stewing chicken weighs about three pounds. A roaster weighs four or more pounds. A poult is a turkey in its first year. A poularde is a pullet deprived of the power of producing eggs, with the object of great size.—Exchange.

REYES MENTIONED FOR PLACE

The Mexican Storm, Which Seems to Be Directed More Against the Vice President Than the President, May Be Stilled by Resignation of Former and the Restoration of Reyes, the Popular Idol of the Mexicans.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Nov. 23.—Fighting is going on now at Cuatro Ciengas, Coahuila, forty miles below Monclova. Cuatro Ciengas is a stronghold of anti-Diaz citizens. Another troop of infantry has just been ordered there. Secret service men state that the situation is becoming more serious in the interior than on the border.

Mexico City, Nov. 23.—Every train arriving at the city of Mexico brings political prisoners arrested at various points throughout the republic. The situation is considered by well-informed persons to be very grave, but the government still insists that the revolt will be subdued in a few days. Another regiment of infantry has been sent from here to the frontier. The government thinks that Madero, the rebel leader, is in Mexico with a body of armed rebels, but thus far it has not been possible to locate him. The danger at present is all in the northern part of the country. Even at points where no outbreak has occurred the inhabitants are nervous and ready to run or fight at the least alarm.

It is stated on high authority that Diaz contemplates making sweeping reforms in the cabinet after his re-inauguration on Dec. 2. There are persistent rumors that Senor Corral will resign the office of vice president before the inauguration takes place. He is very unpopular and the present revolutionary movement is directed against him and the other aristocratic members of the cabinet rather than against President Diaz. General Reyes is mentioned as the successor of Senor Corral. Minister Creel reports that Senor Corral's health has been failing during the last few days, and that he contemplates a trip to Europe.

PUTTING PRESSURE ON

Orders Issued by Diaz to Deal Sternly With Rebels.

Matamoras, Mexico, Nov. 23.—President Diaz will do no more temporizing with political malcontents captured in this country. Just before the federal telegraph wires leading to various parts of the country were cut by bands of revolutionists the order was carried over them to the commander of every military zone in the country and to all local peace authorities to arrest and imprison every man who is under suspicion of being a participant in the seditious movement against the government. As a result of this order thousands of citizens, including many who belong to the business class, have been taken into custody and placed in jail. The order was also issued by Diaz that wherever a group of persons are found congregated upon a street or in a building without a permit from the proper authorities it is the duty of police or federal troops to fire upon them if they do not immediately disperse when called upon to do so.

The army as a whole is standing loyally by the government. The few desertions and revolts of small and isolated garrisons are looked upon as portending no general dissatisfaction on the part of the military. Francisco I. Madero, the revolutionary leader, has had no military training, and he is unknown to the army. Well informed people say that the rank and file of the Mexican army has very little patriotism, but they will stand by the source of their food and drink supply. At present the Diaz administration offers them the best in this respect, although the promises of the Maderists of increased pay for the soldiers and higher salaries for the officers, if they will come over to them, may have some effect.

Wide circulation is being given among the army to a report that Madero has floated a loan of $20,000,000 in the United States with which to carry on his campaign. It is also currently reported by the revolutionists that General Bernardo Reyes is on his way to Mexico from Europe and that he is due to arrive at Tampico in a few days. General Reyes is, next to Diaz, the most popular man with the army.

AMERICAN TROOPS

Are Patrolling the River to Prevent Disturbances on This Side.

Laredo, Tex., Nov. 23.—Troops from Fort Sam Houston at San Antonio have arrived on the border and are patrolling the river. It is thought they will prevent disturbances on this side of the Mexican line. Four companies of United States soldiers, about 320 men, stationed at Fort McIntosh, are here, and a company of state rangers was sent here by the governor.

The wires are strictly censored on the Mexican side, but Mexican officials admit the capture by the rebels of Gomez Palacio, in the state of Coahuila, and several small towns in the state of Chihuahua. The presence of Madero in Laredo is believed by many. Mexican secret service men are busy, and if they locate Madero it is believed he may be kidnapped to the Mexican side.

REFUGEES FLOCKING ACROSS THE BORDER

El Paso Filling Up With Frightened People.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 23.—El Paso is filling up with refugees from Mexico, mostly American men, women and children, but some natives. Every train is full of them fresh from the scenes of fighting at Torreón, Madera, Gomez Palacio, Parral and other points in northern Mexico. Many Americans are leaving their business. An American doctor brought his family out from Parral, leaving behind a drug store with $10,000 worth of merchandise in it. He left after two Spaniards, storekeepers, had been killed for refusing to give rifles to the attackers, and the chief of police and mayor had been assassinated. There was fighting in the streets as he left.

Reports in some instances state that Americans have been killed in the fighting, but arrivals do not know this positively. That the death list has been heavy in Gomez Palacio, Madera and Torreón, among the natives, however, is universally declared.

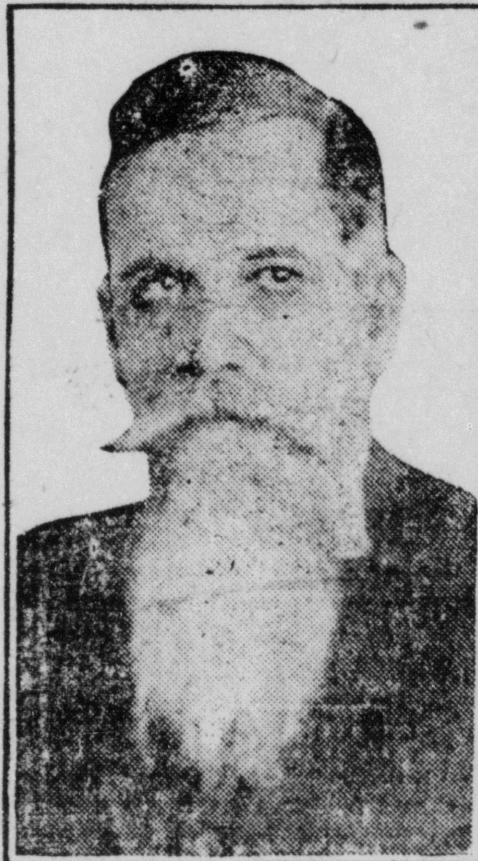

A. G. Springer, a New York jeweler, declares he counted over fifty dead in the streets of Gomez Palacio, and that he saw three battles in one day, first when the rebels captured the municipal palace, then when they were driven out by rurales, and again when they retook it. He says the rebels, gathering recruits at every step, were marching on to Torreón when he left, and that all business houses in Torreón had been closed and every preparation for an attack. Telegrams state that the attack took place and that the town fell into the hands of the rebels after an artillery bombardment, but that troops have been dispatched from Guadalupe to attempt to retake the town.

Frank Gilmore, a mining man, who has just arrived, says Chihuahua had received the news that a train bearing 300 soldiers has been blown up near Madera. A railroad man said, however, that he heard a telephone conversation before leaving his starting point, which stated that an attempt to wreck the train failed, and revolutionists then fired into the coaches and killed several soldiers.

Trainmen on this road declared there has been no trouble as far south as Pearson and that the Mormon colony region, around Casa Grandes, was perfectly quiet. Madera is in the hands of the rebels, the soldiers having deserted after arrival there, and all reports agree on this. Late telegrams state that fighting is taking place in Chihuahua, the capital of the state. However, the Mexican Central agent here got a wire denying that any fighting had occurred there. An American who arrived from Parral declared that people arriving there from Inde, Durango, stated that the entire town has been ransacked by revolutionists and that American and Mexican property alike has been destroyed. All Mexican officers were killed.

WINTER WINDOW GARDENS.

What Plants to Depend Upon Through Cold Weather.

This is the time to stock the winter house garden. Some plants are to be saved from the garden and some ordered from the florist.

Benjamin Goodrich tells the readers of Country Life that no window garden plant is more dependable than the common geranium, especially in the single varieties, which are handsomest for the purpose. He names the geranium first for gayety, the heliotrope next for fragrance and says a good word for that old fashioned flower, sweet alyssum, which gives the note of white and if not allowed to go to seed blooms continuously.

Premula obconica is recommended for its free blooming habit, its pale pinkish blossoms being produced in abundance. He has a good word also for that beautiful pink begonia, Gloire de Lorraine, but he says it is less dependable than the tall coral begonia (B. coccinea), whose large red blossoms hang from the stiff stems for three or four months. Another good begonia is B. semperflorens, var. gigantea rosea. These will provide bloom.

Forced Dutch and cape bulbs, brought in in succession, add much to the interest of the winter garden. The so called Chinese lily, double Roman, Von Sion, Grand Soleil d'Or narcissi, crocus and Princess Marianne tulip will "make a string of blooms from Christmas to early April." Hyacinths, single and Roman freesia, lily, snowdrop and scilla are also favorably mentioned.

FIVE SPECIAL PLEAS

Will Be Entered by the Attorneys for Mrs. Schenk.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, wife of the millionaire pork packer, John O. Schenk, whom she is accused of attempting to poison, was taken into court closely guarded by deputy sheriffs, to plead to the indictment found against her by the special grand jury.

Mrs. Schenk, attired in the latest style and wearing an abundance of jewelry, appeared unconcerned, and nodded and smiled to a number of friends who were present. She was not asked to plead to the indictment, her attorneys saying they would file five special pleas. Prosecuting Attorney Handlan gave notice that if the indictment is sustained he would ask that the trial be listed for Dec. 13. Mrs. Schenk was returned to the county jail.

"Gimme a dime for the newsboy's dinner," a boy asked as he shoved a dirty hand in front of a man at Tenth and Main streets.

"I haven't seen anything in the papers about a newsboy's dinner," the man said. "When does it take place?" "Just as soon as you give me the dime and I can get to a lunch counter," the boy said. He got the dime.

30 YEARS OF SUCCESS

The B. M. Hyde Co. Offer a Remedy for Catarrh. The Medicine Costs
Nothing if It Fails.

When a medicine effects a successful treatment in a very large majority of cases, and when we offer that medicine on our own personal guarantee that it will cost the user nothing if it does not completely relieve catarrh, it is only reasonable that people should believe us, or at least put our claim to a practical test when we take all the risk. These are facts which we want the people to substantiate. We want them to try Rexall Muc-Tone, a medicine prepared from a prescription of a physician with whom catarrh was a specialty, and who has a record of thirty years of enviable success to his record.

We receive more good reports about Rexall Muc-Tone than we do of all other catarrh remedies sold in our store, and if more people only knew what a thoroughly dependable remedy Rexall Muc-Tone is, it would be the only catarrh remedy we would have any demand for.

Rexall Muc-Tone is quickly absorbed and by its therapeutic effect tends to disinfect and cleanse the entire mucous membrane tract, to destroy and remove the parasites which injure the membrane tissues, to soothe the irritation and heal the soreness, stop the mucous discharge, build up strong, healthy tissue and relieve the blood and system of diseased matter. Its influence is toward stimulating the mucous cells, aiding digestion and improving nutrition until the whole body vibrates with healthy activity. In a comparatively short time it brings about a noticeable gain in weight, strength, good color and feeling of buoyancy.

We urge you to try Rexall Muc-
Tone, beginning a treatment today.
At any time you are not satisfied, simply come and tell us, and we will quickly return your money without question or quibble. We have Rexall Muc-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Seymour only at our store,—The Rexall Store. The

REPUBLICANS IN FIGHTING TRIM

Indiana Republicans Made Good Record Compared With Others.

REMARKABLY CLOSE RESULT

Many Republican States Slumped Overwhelmingly. While Indiana Held Her Own Well Against the Trend of the Times—State Headquarters Will Be Kept Open During Next Two Years—Plan Aggressive Campaign in 1912.

Indianapolis—Indiana Republicans made a better showing at the late election, on the official figures, than was made by the Republicans of any other state, east or west.

From a one-time normal plurality of 25,000 the Republicans of Hoosierdom saw the figures change to 12,000 Democratic on the state ticket in 1910, following the election of a Democratic governor in 1908 by over 15,000.

In other words, Indiana has become a doubtful state, at best, and the Republicans of Indiana may fairly be said to have held their own in a time of Democratic landslides in other Republican states.

Ohio Whirled Madly Over Democratic Cliff.

For instance, Ohio, with her normal $0,000 Republican, whirled madly over the Democratic cliff for 90,000 Democratic plurality. This does not compare favorably with Indiana's Republican showing.

New York—Republican in 1908 by some 200,000 and more, flopped to the tune of over 60,000 Democratic. Indiana Republicans feel they can compare their showing with that made by New York Republicans.

There is Pennsylvania, with her 200,000 normal Republican preponderance, slumped to a bare 20,000. Indiana did a lot better than the Keystone.

Wisconsin, though the Republicans won by a narrow margin, lost infinitely more in party vote this year than did the Republican organization in Indiana. The same thing was true in Kansas and Iowa. The same was true in Illinois, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, and other Republican strongholds.

The results in all states outside Indiana indicated a powerful drift toward the Democratic party. This is to be seen on the face of the returns.

Dissatisfaction there was, and no one attempts to deny it. The dissatisfaction, for whatever cause, is to be read in the vote, in the overwhelming gains made by Democrats in several important Republican states.

No Landslide in Indiana.

But when the figures are studied it is found that Indiana was an exception to the landslide rule. Indiana Republicans, instead of being swept off their feet and thrown into the discard of politics, came out of the fight well-formed, organized, militant, aggressive, and ready to renew the struggle without delay.

State Chairman Edwin M. Lee announces that the Republican state committee will keep its headquarters open at the third floor of the Claypool Hotel during the next two years, losing no time in getting ready for the campaign of 1912. The campaign goes right on.

Indiana Republicans were progressive and the people were with them on national issues. The progressive leadership of Senator A. J. Beveridge appealed to the hearts of the masses with such force that in spite of the admitted trend of the times, and in spite of local complications and confusing state issues, the Republicans came very close to carrying the legislature, and lost the state ticket by only a narrow margin.

Democratic legislators carried a plurality of a little more than 8,000 in the state of Indiana. But of this plurality Marion county furnished more than 3,500; Vigo over 2,800, and Madison over 1,200.

Not only do these few Democratic pluralities in big cities meet the total of the Democratic plurality on the legislature in the state, but it is found on looking to the returns, that in 16 legislative districts Democrats were elected to the number of 16, by a combined plurality of 1,699. A change of 850 votes from the Democratic to the Republican column in those 16 districts, properly distributed, would have given the Republicans the 16 members and control of the legislature.

It is admitted by all that at least an average of three Republicans to a precinct voted with the Democrats as wets, in an effort to show their disapproval of the county local option law. If less than one and one half to a precinct of these Republican voters, in the sixteen districts referred to, had stayed with their party and refused to be led away by confusing influences the legislature would have been Republican by two on joint ballot.

If three Republicans to a precinct in the state had refused to follow the Democrats on option the Republican state ticket would have been elected by over 8,000.

So, on the whole, the Republican organization in the Hoosier state feels that there is cause for encouragement rather than for pessimism in the Indiana result of 1910. Chairman Lee says the fight has only just begun.

We's got to keep Thanksgiving, Fo' ain't we got a livin'?

An' ain't dere allus plenty fo' de ones dat doesn't shu'k?

Dat's why Ah like to heah muh mas call, "Tu'key, tu'key, tu'key!"

How Many Turkeys Doomed?

What would you say if you should see a file of turkeys stretching from San Francisco to New York and from New York back to Chicago? "Some turkeys," probably. Well, one of these professional estimators has figured it out that the Thanksgiving turkeys to be consumed this year would make a line about that long if placed single file in marching order.

But it is easier to estimate than to acquire. Six million turkeys is the estimate made by the statistician who has imagined this 4,000 mile streak of strutting gobblers and humbler hens in line.

Accepting this reasoning as a minimum and supposing that the average bird weighs nine pounds, it appears that the people of the United States will consume 54,000,000 pounds of turkey this Thanksgiving. Packed in refrigerator cars, as they are ordinarily transported, 1,000 birds to the car, this number of turkeys would make about 6,000 carloads and would require for their transportation a train forty miles in length. These many tons of noble fowls would more than test the carrying capacity of all of Uncle Sam's war ships.

A Personal Problem.

The turkey whistled softly and sadly "I Would Not Live Always" as he gazed solemnly at the calendar and realized that Thanksgiving day was almost here.

"Why so thoughtful, Brother Gobbler?" inquired the patriarch of the flock.

"I was just pondering a question which will be of vital importance in the hereafter," explained Brother Gobbler.

"It is always profitable to dwell upon that time which is inevitable to all of us, but I trust you distinguish between simply idle speculation and the elevating contemplation of the essentials, dear brother," admonished the patriarch.

"Well, I suppose you would hardly call it that," replied Brother Gobbler reflectively, scratching at a retreating worm. "The fact is, I was just wondering which is the most delicious, white or dark meat."

THE WIDDER'S WILD TURKEY.

A Thanksgiving Episode In the Ozarks.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"BEGINS to 'pear to me," remarked Ezry Edwards of Hoop pole, "that some of us ain't goin' to have no turk meat for Thanksgiving dinner this year. Turk's goin' to be powerful high, I 'low."

"If it wuzn't for the mean, triflin' nature o' some folks in this here neck o' the woods," put in Squire Summers, whose name should have been Winters on account of his chill attitude toward things in general, "they'd be a-plenty o' turk meat all right. If some o' these here fellers that's alwuz 'armin' up on their hind heels an' kick in 'bout high prices 'uld list turn to an' raise some turkeys, they'd be a-plenty for all of us an' some left over for the widder."

"It wuz the widder that I wuz jist a-think in' of when I spoke up," said Ezry. "Here she's had no man to do for her these two years, an' her place is all run down, an' she surely needs a man to keep it up for her."

"Yes, she needs a man," said Squire Summers. With the accent on the last word, "but she don't need no sich ornery little hop-toads as this here neighborhood has hoppin' around the roads. What she needs is a man old enough an' well off enough—here the squire puffed out his own chest—"to keep her sensible and proper-like."

Squire Summers mounted his ancient horse and rode off toward his 400 acre bottom farm. Ezry Edwards looked after him with daggers in his eyes. "The blamed old runt!" he said to the country storekeeper, Hiram Samuels. "I do b'lieve he's runnin' after the widder himself."

Hiram laughed, a loud ha-ha! He looked quizzically at Ezry. "Where's your eyes been all this time, Ez?" asked Hiram. "In the back o' your head, I reckon. W'y, don't you know, consarn your picter, that Square Summers 's been tryin' to annex the widder ever sence her cow loped into his back yard an' he brought her—the widder—up before him an' fined her $5 an' costs for trespassin'?"

"I don't quite see," said Ezry, "jist how a jedger that could do a thing like that to a pore widder woman would ever have the nerve to ast her to marry him."

"The square's nerve," Hiram returned, "is equal to any emergency, specially sence them eighty acres of the widder's jines his'n. He'd like to marry them two farms, an' to do it he's got to marry the widder fust. Her land's powerful rich if somebody would take holt an' work it. The square knows that."

Ezry walked off down the road toward his own humble bachelor shanty muttering to himself. He was just a year or two older than the widder, while Squire Summers was at least thirty years her senior. Ezry had loved her ten years before, when she married Jim Brandon, but he had lacked the courage to ask for her in time. He remained unmarried, working his eighty acre farm. Since Brandon's death Ezry had "set his cap" for the widder, but he thought no one knew it save himself. In fact, he kept it so closely to himself that not even the Widder Brandon knew of his intentions. The widder lived alone but for her two small children. Ezry had called at her house two or three times, "jist to ast how the children is," he told her. Once he stayed to supper. The widder's corn bread and sweet potatoes, with baked pork and apple pie, still made his mouth water.

"The old runt!" he muttered as he stepped inside his two room shack and lit the kitchen stove to cook his lonely meal. "I'll cut him out yit! Turkeys? W'y, he's got a bunder o' the finest birds ever raised in these parts, an' the stingy old dried up mummy'll sell all of 'em in town an' put the money in the bank an' make his darters eat salt pork for Thanksgiving dinner. All right, Ezry—you jist git the widder a turk an' take your Thanksgiving dinner along with her an' pop the question right after dinner."

Having made this high resolve, registered in heaven, Ezry slept well that night. Thanksgiving was just one week off. Ezry made overtures to Squire Summers for the purchase of a gobbler, but his rival apparently suspected his intentions regarding the disposition of the bird. He refused to sell at any price. Ezry tried all the other neighbors, but was amazed to find that Squire Summers had bought up their entire turkey output the week before and was finishing their fattening so that he could sell them in the town market at an increased figure. Turkey promised to bring 20 cents a pound at wholesale—the highest ever known in the Hoop pole country.

Returning home, Ezry took down a rusty old shotgun from its pegs above his door and inspected the works. He extracted the old load with a corkscrew fitted upon the end of the ramrod and put in a fresh one. He aimed at a crow in a tree across the road. The gun was in commission. The crow was out. Ezry was satisfied.

"They used to be a lot o' wild turks in these here woods," said Ezry, "but these city hunters has scared most of 'em off. But I seen a flock o' seven yistiddy, an' if I can find one nex' Wednesday I'll shoot it for the widder."

Ezry laid off from work on Wednesday and went to the woods early, his shotgun carefully cleaned and oiled and a large supply of ammunition for the old muzzle loader in his possession. The old time powderhorn swung from his side. The shot was in a bag tied to the horn, and a box of percussion caps was in his pocket.

Nearly all day, until the sun began to decline behind the hills, Ezry hunted, but saw no wild turkeys. He began to 'low he'd have to wait till Christmas to get the widder's turk, when suddenly he heard in the bushes at his right the familiar call of the big wild bird which used to be king of the Ozarks.

The hunter pulled out a whistle-like affair on which he could imitate the call. He made several turkey calls and was rewarded by seeing a big gobbler, with the reddish brown feathers peculiar to the wild turkey, fly up into a neighboring tree.

Ezry, his hadd SHE BELIEVED SHE'D trembling with ALWAYS LIKED HIM "buck ager" and WELL ENOUGH. love, sighted his gun at the gobbler, which sighted him at the same instant and began to fly swiftly away.

"Stiddy now, Ezry!" he said softly, and on the instant his hand ceased its trembling. Ezry took deliberate aim slightly ahead of the bird and shot him on the fly. The gobbler dropped in a fluffy heap. The shot had decapitated him.

The triumphant hunter's way home lay past the widow's house. He picked up his bird by the feet and trudged happily right up to Mrs. Brandon's door.

"How's the children, Mis' Brandon?" he asked. "I've got a little Thanksgiving present for 'em."

The widow was grateful, but she "flabbergasted" Ezry, as he told his wife later, when she informed him that Squire Summers already had sent her a fine turkey gobbler and was coming over with his two daughters to help her eat it.

Ezry braced up then. He looked the widow squarely in the eye.

"Mis' Brandon," he said, "I worked all day to git this here critter for you, an' you're goin' to eat my turk—it's yore turk, too—an' I'm goin' to eat with you, an' the square an' his darters can eat their own turk. We'll cook both of 'em up. An'—Mary—uh—you know the square's authorized to issue marriage licenses an' likewise to perform marriages. Them two gals can be our witnesses, as the law says we got to have. Are you willin'?"

"Hang Mr. Edwards' turk up in the shed, Johnny," the widow said to her son, "an' you go along with Johnny, Mirandy."

When the two children were out of earshot something like a smack was heard by the two "contracting parties." The widow told Ezry she believed she'd always liked him well enough, but he'd been so backward.

They say in the Hoop pole country that Squire Summers was so mad he didn't even offer to kiss the bride. But that omission merely added to the joy of the bridegroom.

How to Slaughter Turkeys.

Turkeys are sometimes sent to market with their plumage on, but they should not be. A properly prepared turkey should be slaughtered after the old formula—as old as the Indians—and set down as follows by the late Thomas Hazzard, the well known Rhode Island turkey expert, who was known as "Shepherd Tom" for many years:

"The turkey should be shut up and kept without food for eighteen hours. Then suspend the sacred creature from a pike above carefully by a stout cord or string tied around both legs and, holding the head downward, reverently but quickly cut asunder the jugular vein and just as soon as the breath leaves pluck off the feathers before the body gets cold. This done, remove the crop and entrails without loss of time, restoring the liver and gizzard when the latter has been cleansed of its gravelly contents and its inside skin. Then tie a string around both wings and both legs and hang it up in a cool, dry place for two or three days."

THANKSGIVING TRAGEDY.

Rostand's "Chantecler" Put Into Shade by These Four Spasms.

SPASM I.—A farmyard. The gobbler has gathered his family about him and has announced that the morrow is Thanksgiving and that one of them is in deadly peril.

THE GOBBLER: "Dusk is drawing on apace, and unless our wits

Avert the blow tomorrow one must die.

The cock's shrill note proclaims each coming morn

Unto our master's house. To this cock's sympathies

We must appeal."

SPASM II.—The same. The turkey family visit the cock, led by the gobbler, who struts into the presence of his host with great dignity.

THE GOBBLER: "Honored cock, tomorrow is Thanksgiving, and

I fear that one of us is doomed to die To satiate the gluttonous proclivities

Our common master and his brood display.

We have observed that at the morn you daily sound

A clarion note. That note tomorrow Will pronounce our doom. If you will but neglect To crow our danger will be past, And, grateful for your service, we will fast The livelong day, and you shall feast Upon our portion."

THE COCK: "Shortsighted bird! Our master has a clock that sounds

the hours Of day and night upon a deep toned gong. My voice no longer rouses him, and I Am powerless in the premises.

Your offer of reward is worse than naught.

For if the master rises not at morn Pray whence will come the feast you promise me?"

THE GOBBLER: "Tis well. We'll stop the clock."

SPASM III.—The farmer's dining room at 9 o'clock p. m. The turkey family gather round the ancient clock. The cock is an interested spectator.

THE GOBBLER: "I will turn back

The hands, and you, my love, hold fast the pendulum."

THE HEN: "My lord, the pendulum is still."

OMNES: "And we are safe."

SPASM IV.—The farmer's dining room at midday on Thanksgiving. The family and a number of friends are seated around a table groaning beneath its weight of toothsome viands. The sunshine streams through the ample window with greater warmth than at morning when it awoke the farmer.

THE FARMER: "Deacon, please return our thanks."

[The deacon delivers an invocation.] "Marlar, pass the turkey."

HIS LAST MOMENTS.

They Were Gently Soothed by the Kind Hospital Orderly.

Nurses in English military hospitals are rather apt to lay too much stress on the advantages received by the patients and their duty of thankfulness, but still it is the poor soldier who suffers most from always having his causes to be grateful dung in his teeth.

Witness the following true story:

Chaplain—So poor Hopkins is dead. I should have liked to speak to him once again and soothe his last moments. Why didn't you call me?

Hospital Orderly—I didn't think you ought to be disturbed for 'Opkins, sir, so I jist soothed him as best I could myself.

Chaplain—Why, what did you say to him?

Orderly—"Opkins," says I, "you're mortal bad."

"I am," says 'e.

"Opkins," says I, "I don't think you'll get better."

"No," says 'e.

"Opkins," says I, "you're going fast."

"Yes," says he.

"Opkins," says I, "I don't think you can 'ope to go to 'eaven."

"I don't think I can," says 'e.

"Well, then, 'Opkins," says I, "you'll go to the other place."

"I suppose so," says 'e.

"Opkins," says I, "you ought to be very grateful as there's a place provided for you and that you've got somewhere to go." And I think 'e 'eard, sir, and then 'e died.

A Beautiful Mixup.

Some years ago the first three horses in the Lincoln handicap, a famous English race, were Ob, Dean Swift and Roseate Dawn. A press agency in London wired the result to an Australian paper as follows: "Lincoln Ob Dean Swift Roseate Dawn."

The subeditor who was in charge had never heard of the Lincoln handicap and for some time puzzled vainly over this mysterious message.

Finally he came to the conclusion that "Ob" must stand for "Obit," the Latin word used for expressing a death notice. He accordingly turned out the following paragraph, which duly appeared in print: "We deeply regret to announce the death at Lincoln of the celebrated Dean Swift, the author of that favorite hymn 'The Roseate Hues of Early Dawn.'"

A Dainty Cow.

The old fabrication that Scotsmen "joke w'y" dexterity" is all nonsense. Some of the newspapers published north of the Tweed are so brimming over with fun that it actually overflows into the advertisement pages, where one would scarcely hope to find it. To back up this assertion we quote the following ad., which appeared in the Scotsman the other day:

"Woman (active) to wash, dress and milk cow; also assist housework. No. 9514, Scotsman, Glasgow."

There's cleanliness for you. We suppose the cows are mangled after they are washed and dressed and their teeth carefully polished up with tooth-brushes.—London Answers.

BLOOD TROUBLES

CONSTITUTIONAL INFECTION

Constitutional Blood Poison is the most insidious of all diseases. It begins in an insignificant manner, usually the appearance of a tiny sore being the only outward evidence of its presence. But down in the blood the treacherous infection is at work, and in a short time its chain of symptoms begin to crop out. The mouth and throat ulcerate, skin eruptions break out, sores and ulcers appear on the body, the glands in the groin swell, and sometimes the hair comes out. Mineral medicines cannot cure Constitutional Blood Poison; they only shut the disease up in the system to smoulder and await an opportunity of breaking out afresh. The only possible way to cure the disease is to REMOVE the germs from the blood. S. S. S. goes into the blood, and while removing the infection makes the blood pure, fresh and healthy. This causes a general upbuilding of the entire system, and when S. S. S. has made a cure there is no return of the hideous symptoms. S. S. S. is made entirely of vegetable matter, containing not the least particle of mineral in any form. It is a perfectly safe medicine and a certain cure for blood poison. We have a Home treatment book which we will be glad to send free to all who write and request it, also any medical advice without charge.

OBSERVATION.

It is the close observation of little things which is the secret of success in business, in art, in science and in every pursuit in life. Human knowledge is but an accumulation of small facts made by successive generations of men—the little bits of knowledge and experience carefully treasured up by them growing at length into a mighty pyramid.—Samuel Smiles.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. ## BACK To

At the foot of the hill where the turnpike swerved sharply to the left to avoid climbing the abrupt elevation and close by the brook, which, finding its source somewhere among the hillsides, meandered leisurely through swamp and swale and cut the farm squarely in two, stood the old homestead. The moss grown shingled roof peeped modestly from behind a screen of age-old trees, and the low down sagging foundations were scarcely anywhere visible behind the rampant growth of rose bushes that clambered halfway up the south side of the house. There were lilacs grown into trees, syringas that crowded half across the gravel walk, a giant honeysuckle vine that had been choked and pruned back until its gnarled old trunk resembled a grotesque freak of nature.

The old homestead had housed and reared seven generations of men and women of the same name, but it had come to pass that those of the seventh generation were widely scattered and the old homestead no longer knew them. There were seven of this generation—seven boys—and the last to leave the old homestead had gone forth, like the others, to battle in the larger world for life and happiness.

"MOTHER, I'M GOING TO THE CITY TOMORROW."

But there was loneliness in the mother's heart. When the first son had broken away from the farm the pang had been sharp and cruel, but there were six left behind. Then the second had grown restless and followed in the footsteps of the elder. The third waited a few years, silently tilling the fertile farm and watching for his chance. It came one day with unexpected abruptness.

"Mother, I'm going to the city tomorrow," he said at the close of a hard day's work in the fields. "My opportunity has come."

There was no open opposition, but the heartstrings were quivering. So the third son went, and after him the fourth. In a few years the remaining sturdy babies had grown to the stature of manhood, and they, too, cast longing eyes cityward. Would not one of them remain on the farm?

The last to go had been her favorite, for was he not the baby? And with his going the light seemed to go out of the world for the aged couple. But these two were of pioneer stock, and they had met and overcome adversity in many forms, and in time they fell back upon each other's company and found a measure of contentment.

There were seven sons, and each week seven letters left the homestead mailed to different addresses. One went to Chicago, another to New York, a third to Boston, two to St. Louis, one far off to the Pacific coast and the last to a nearby city. Monday was devoted to thoughts of the eldest, and the mother's brain and heart put into his letter all the little news of the home life which he had loved. He had been devoted to the live stock, and she recorded faithfully the details of their progress. Billy, his pet horse, had long since died, but another colt had been named after him, and he was always held in reserve for his absent owner.

Tuesday's letter was more difficult of composition. It called her forth into the woods to get news, for the second son had been a roamer and a friend of every squirrel and rabbit. He could imitate the call of the bluejay and whistle the piping song of the finches. She had learned the nesting season of the different birds he had loved, and her letters were full of woodland scenes and wild life.

Wednesday was a day of easy letter writing. It was all about crops, the condition of the north and south fields, the probable yield per acre and in harvest time an account of the results. On Thursday her letter was addressed to the young architect in New York, and she spoke of the things which he had loved, and Friday she roamed the woods again for material, for he of San Francisco was the hunter and trapper of the family, and Saturdays

BY George Ethelbert Walsh

she peered into the streams and the dark pools of the river for information about the silvery pike and speckled trout, for the sixth son was of the Izaak Walton school. Then came Sunday, with its calm peacefulness and thoughtful reflections. Her baby had been of an artistic and religious temperament, and the Sabbath was consecrated to him. She could speak more freely and intimately of her inner thoughts and home life, and her pen moved more rapidly over the paper.

At first the weekly letters were answered more or less regularly. She was THE TABLE ALONE, a wise mother and did not expect a reply to every effusion of her own. They were busy boys, engaged in the battle of life. Sometimes weeks passed, and then a few lines compensated for the lonely waiting.

They fell in love and married in time. They brought their brides in hurried visits to the old home. Children came to them, and each birth added to the cares of the father. She longed intensely to know of her grandchildren, and if she wrote long rambling letters of the old farm her heart was aching for minute details of the children born in the image of their fathers.

But the rush of life in the cities made the farm seem a long way off. Letter writing was oftentimes irksome, and the seven sons had duties that absorbed their time and strength. The letters grew fewer and their length shorter. On the old homestead the aged couple laboriously read over and over again the brief epistles, pondering and thinking and speculating—and sighing.

In due time the seven sons forgot to write or delegated the work to their wives. They were too occupied to waste their time in epistolary composition. They know, moreover, that their parents knew they would send word if anything unusual happened.

And nothing unusual happened to them—that is, nothing that would interest the aged couple living on the old homestead. They would not care to read of things in the city which were so vital to the sons of the seventh generation—of social gatherings, of business developments, of art lectures, of politics, of religious and charity work. These were things of the city and not of the country. Their parents would not understand, as if the mother love was not inclusive enough to embrace all things that touched the hearts and lives of her offspring!

So the sadness and loneliness of the life on the old homestead took on a keener edge. The aged couple would sit hand in hand and watch the departing rays of sun with moistened, dimmed eyes. The broader back of the man was sturdy enough to carry the burden, but the mother was bending under the load.

"Don't worry, mother," soothed the man. "They have their families and their cares, and we must be content." "It is not that," she murmured, "but—and the eyes had a frightened look in them—"I do not feel equal to writing—the letters any more. I—I—find them a burden now."

The man gently pressed the hand that had penned the daily letters. "Rest, then, mother, rest! They will not"—He stopped, he could not say they would not miss them, and yet the quivering heart at his side knew he meant it. "That is it," she replied slowly; "they will not miss them, and that is what hurts."

The eyes drooped, and the head rested heavily on the shoulder by her side. They sat there a long time watching the fading light and the coming up of the new moon. The dew of the evening wet them before they rose slowly and made their way inside.

Long habit and training cannot be changed in a day or night, and a mother's yearning for her sons insisted that some message should be sent, but each week the letters grew shorter and there was no heart or life in them. Sometimes they were so perfunctory that one was merely a duplicate of the other, a mere reference to the weather and crops and an assurance that all were well. The hand copied from day to day what the brain had dictated for one. There was little variation.

HOMESTEAD Story

The summer passed and harvest time approached again. The Thanksgiving season brought its train of memories.

A week before Thanksgiving she looked anxiously for letters from her sons. Each day they drove a mile to the village for their mail, but the letters were not there. Two days before the event the frail body was keyed to intense suspense. On the morning one of them surely would write and gladden her heart. But they returned from the postoffice without the letter.

"We must go to the village today, father," she urged on Thanksgiving morning. "We need—we need salt or sugar, I forget which."

The man accepted the gentle lie without a quiver. There was a single morning mail, and perhaps—perhaps—but who can tell? They drove slowly through the crisp autumn air and returned at dinner time.

They were both very silent and grave. The man was more concerned over the white drawn face at his side than at the neglect of his sons. If they only knew—if they only knew!

They sat down at the table alone, she rousing herself by a final effort for the sake of the man who had shared her life's burdens with her, and he kindly, courteous and considerate of her every little comfort. "Mother, we will ask a blessing for our sons and their families," he began.

The plates were set for the seven, a custom never abandoned even though they remained empty throughout the Thanksgiving meal. The two did not hear the outside noises, nor the rattle of the lumbering stage, nor the lifting of the latch. When they raised their eyes the room was full of bearded and bronzed and pale and clean shaven faces—faces which in spite of wind and weather and toil and sweat had a strange family resemblance. It was unusual that they should be there, but it did not seem strange, so confident was the mother heart that her prayer would be answered.

"Mother, I was worried. Your letters were so different, and I came home instead of writing."

It was the eldest who spoke and embraced her. "And I met the others on the train or at the station," he continued. "They felt the same and could not wait to write."

"Yes, mother," added another, a little reproachfully, "it made me homesick not to hear from you oftener, and when your letters did come they were so—so different. I knew something was wrong with either you or father. What is it?"

They glanced from one aged parent to the other. The faded eyes of the woman turned tremblingly from one to the other and finally sought in fear and confusion the face of her husband. He nodded responsively.

"Yes, mother has been sick—heart-sick," he began slowly. "You were homesick, but she was heart-sick. She has been giving you of her life, but you have returned little of yours. She has carried the old home to you in her letters, but you have neglected her in yours."

Even then the mother hunger was predominant and could not abide the chastening of her offspring. The frail hand waved aside the speaker, but he added softly:

"Even now she's ready to give more than she will receive."

Then, with a twinkle in his eyes: "Mother, is the feast spread for nine or two?"

Ten years suddenly slipped from the gray head and the frail body, and the face was wreathed in a holy smile as she bustled about and changed dishes and added more to the table's supply.

"We only set places for your spirits, and not for your bodies," she murmured guiltily. "And you are all such hearty eaters!"

"Yes, hearty eaters—big eaters, mother!" they said in one voice. "But we know where you keep the turkey and the cranberry sauce and the pumpkin pies and all the other good things. Wait until we see?"

The raid on the kitchen which followed worked havoc with the week's cooking, but the joyous cries and wrangling words mingled with laughter were music to her ears. She had her seven sons back again, and they were boys still in spite of beards and deeply lined foreheads and wrinkled cheeks.

WITHOUT BENEDICTION TOLSTOY WAS BURIED

Impressive Scene On Knoll Beside Old Home.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 23.—When the train with the remains of Count Tolstoy reached Saseka, the route from the station to Tolstoy's estate at Yasaya Poliana was lined with large crowds. The coffin was carried by the count's sons and some peasants. These were preceded by other peasants who bore a white linen banner on which were the words: "The memory of your goodness shall never fade among us orphaned peasants."

Two choirs of students followed and alternately sang the choral "Eternal Memory." Then came four carriages filled with wreaths. On the arrival of the cortege at Yasaya Poliana the coffin was placed in a room from which all the furniture had been removed except a bookcase, a portrait of Tolstoy's brother and a bust of Buddha.

The peasants formed in line outside and walked by the coffin in great numbers to pay their last respects to the dead author. Several thousand persons attended the burial, thronging the grounds in orderly silence. When the coffin was brought out of the house all knelt and sang a funeral hymn. They remained on their knees until the coffin had passed.

Countess Tolstoy and the members of the family walked behind the coffin. They were encircled by a number of men clasping each other's hands. The grave was dug by peasants dwelling on the estate, on a tree-crowned knoll, where Tolstoy desired to lie. There beneath the boughs of nine surrounding oaks the body was laid to rest without ritual or addresses, but with every solemnity and amid the sobs of many sincere mourners. No benediction was uttered, but as the simple rite ended there arose the earnest voice of a man saying: "Our great Leo is dead. Long live our great Leo's spirit. May his precepts of Christian love be fulfilled."

POLICE STEPPED IN

Get-Rich-Quickers Brought Up Standing at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Nov. 23.—Pembroke Perkins, a Pittsburg broker, and George O. Rogers, head of the Rogers Construction company of Pittsburg, were both placed under arrest on three informations of false pretense. They are each held under $5,000 bail and additional charges of conspiracy and fraudulent accounting will be made against them by the Pittsburg police. The plan or business, according to the police, was to reach mechanics who had property of their own or who could raise $1,000 or $2,000, and get them to give up this amount for stock in the company, which the police claim is worthless. The mechanics were to get steady employment at high salary as well as high dividends. When the police raided the place stacks of literature were found.

LAWMAKERS IN QUEST OF DATA

Indiana Legislators-Elect Preparing For Session.

LIQUOR QUESTION PARAMOUNT

From the Drift of Inquiries Pouring Into the Reference Department of the State Library at Indianapolis, It Is Apparent That General Interest of Legislators Will Center On Methods of Option Revision.

Indianapolis, Nov. 23.—Inquiries received by the legislative reference department of the state library indicate that while the bills already being drafted by legislators-elect cover a wide field, the greatest attention is being given to proposed liquor legislation. Copies of laws of other states or of bills obtained from other states, covering about forty different subjects of general legislative interest have been requested, according to John A. Lapp, head of the reference department.

The inquiries concerning liquor legislation indicate, it is said, a healthy consideration of the question. All the inquiries thus far received, which have come from a large number of the lawmakers-elect, are for copies of the Pennsylvania, the Massachusetts, or the Ontario (Canada) liquor laws. The work of the department is purely advisory and is confidential. Mr. Lapp has declined to give any particulars as to which members-elect are interested in certain measures. He has the entire force, which has been increased for the approaching session, at work either collecting or sending out information or complying with requests for the drafting of bills.

Next to the liquor question, Mr. Lapp said that the chief interest, according to reports received, centers in employers' liability laws of other states, in workmen's compensation and employees' pensions, and in the various provisions for legislation advocated in the Democratic state platform, which many of the legislators-elect seem to have taken as their outline in preparing their individual legislative programs.

It appears now that the first roll call for bills in both the house and the senate will see a flood of bills drawn to embody the provisions of the Democratic state platform, and especially will the bills to repeal the county option law and establish a regulating act be in evidence.

DOMESTIC TRAGEDY

Farnsworth Young Man Kills Stepfather, Who Was Abusing Mother.

Sullivan, Ind., Nov. 23.—George Davis, aged fifty-five, was shot and killed by his stepson, Allen Ellis, aged twenty-seven, at Farnsworth. The latter is in jail here and will be charged with murder in the first degree. Davis, who was intoxicated, was abusing his wife, Ellis's stepmother, when the latter objected to the abuse. Davis drew a revolver from a drawer and Ellis ran from the house. Going to the home of his brother, he obtained a shotgun and concealed himself in the kitchen. When Davis appeared at the door and reached toward his hip pocket to get his revolver, Ellis fired.

Ellis accompanied the sheriff to jail without protest. Self-defense is his plea.

ANOTHER INDICTMENT

Banker Gillett Again the Subject of Grand Jury Investigation.

Indianapolis, Nov. 23.—The federal grand jury has returned an indictment against Simeon P. Gillett, former president of the Citizens' National bank of Evansville, who was indicted at the May session of the grand jury and whose case will come up for hearing in the federal court next month. United States District Attorney Miller, however, says he prefers not to say what is in the second indictment, but that it is along similar lines to the indictments returned against Mr. Gillett in May. The previous indictments alleged various violations of the federal banking law.

KILLED IN DISPUTE

Quarrel Over 5-Cent Carfare Ended in Death at Fort Wayne.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 23.—As the outcome of a dispute over a 5-cent car fare, Joseph A. Kaiser, a conductor on the city street railway lines, struck H. E. Siegmund, a Pennsylvania railroad fireman, over the temple with a switch hook, inflicting injuries from which Siegmund died a few minutes later. Kaiser hurried to the police station and gave himself up, asserting that he had acted in self-defense.

Permanent Headquarters Maintained. Indianapolis, Nov. 23.—Edwin M. Lee, Republican state chairman, has announced that the Republican state headquarters will be maintained and kept open from now until the next campaign in 1912. Mr. Lee said he and John F. Hayes, secretary of the state committee, would be at headquarters all the time and a press bureau will be maintained.

PEOPLE WE KNOW

They are Seymour People, and What They Say is of Local Interest.

When an accident like the following occurs right here at home, it is bound to carry weight with our readers. So many strange occurrences go the rounds of the press: are published as facts, people become skeptical. On one subject skepticism is rapidly disappearing. This is due to the actual experience of our citizens, and their public utterances regarding them. The doubter must doubt no more in the face of such evidence as this. The public statement of a reputable citizen living right at home, one whom you can see every day, leaves no ground for the skeptic to stand on.

F. H. Leach, 605 W. Jackson Street, Seymour, Ind., says: "About six years ago I had a fall that injured my kidneys. I suffered greatly and though I spent much money for medicine of various kinds, I did not get relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. In view of my satisfactory experience with this preparation, I advise other kidney sufferers to give it a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through colds, croup and whooping cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It's a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for coughs, colds, lagrippis, asthma, hemorrhages weak lungs. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Nicholson Magic Dead.
